Welcome to Berlin!

Dear Colleagues,

We are delighted to welcome you for the first time to Berlin for the 34th International Labour Process Conference.

The conference takes place in a time of disruptive changes in the world of work. The economic crisis in Europe and the (at least temporary) end of the high-speed growth in emerging economies are intensifying conflicts about rationalisation, restructuring and control of work. Deregulation and the spread of precarious employment are facing increasing criticism and opposition. Technological innovations are changing the labour process not only in the new internet industries but also in traditional manufacturing. Our conference intervenes in a period of “working revolutions” and looks for ways and approaches to revolutionise work.

We received an extremely high number of abstracts. More than 220 papers will be presented at the conference and we are glad to welcome researchers from 33 countries. We are pleased to offer a varied but critical programme of papers, symposia and plenary presentations.

The conference will take place at the WZB building on Reichpietschufer and the Maritim hotel on Stauffenbergstraße a two minute walk away. The two opening plenary sessions, the drinks reception and book launch will be held at the Friedrich Ebert Foundation, again a couple of minutes walk away from the main WZB building. We thank very much the Ebert Foundation for supporting the conference by offering its rooms without any charge.

In addition, we would like to extend our thanks to all conference and symposium chairs, student helpers, the extremely dedicated and efficient team at the WZB and the ILPC steering group.

We hope you will enjoy the conference, the social programme and the sights and sounds of Berlin.

Herzliche Grüße von

Martin, Kendra, Abigail and Shiona
The Conference Locations: WZB and FES

The WZB was founded in 1969 by members of the German parliament. It is funded by the Federal government and the state of Berlin. The WZB conducts basic research with a focus on problems of modern societies in a globalized world.

The WZB’s research areas are: education, labor market and life chances, work, markets and choice, international politics and law, dynamics of political systems, and migration and diversity.

Around 160 German and international researchers work at the WZB, including sociologists, political scientists, economists, legal scholars and historians. Sociology of work is represented at the WZB by the Project Group “Globalization, Work and Production” headed by Martin Krzywdzinski and the Junior Research Group “Work and Care” headed by Lena Hipp.

The FES sees strengthening the representation of workers through their trade unions as an integral component of its efforts towards advancing social democracy around the world. The foundation has made supporting trade union organisations one of its core tasks. This applies both in the various countries where the FES operates, and at regional and global levels.

The ILPC 2016 is supported by the Friedrich Ebert Foundation (FES) which offers its rooms to the conference. The FES celebrated its 90th birthday in 2015 and is the oldest political foundation in Germany. It sees itself as part of the German and the global social-democratic and trade union movement.

Please do not forget to register and pick up your registration pack. The registration desk will be open during the whole conference time at the WZB.
A Very, Very Short History of Work Research at the WZB

The history of work research at the WZB goes back to the 1970s and reflects key debates and socio-economic developments since this time. Under the influence of the discussions about the transformation of Fordism, the German and Swedish approaches towards humanization of work and the reception of the works of Harry Braverman and Michael Burawoy, Frieder Naschold, Ulrich Jürgens, Eckart Hildebrandt, and Gerlinde Dörr developed the concept of “politics of work” (Arbeitspolitik). At the heart of this stands the question of power, legitimacy, and control in companies. Key topics included the development of new production concepts (and the After-Japan debate), the introduction of new production technologies (computer-integrated manufacturing), and the impact on working conditions, work organization, and skill structures.

In the 1990s and 2000s, these topics were investigated further in the context of international comparative projects about various country-, industry-, and company-specific productive models, with French regulation theory, the Varieties-of-Capitalism debate, and the critique developed within the GERPISA network of the concept of the “one best way” of lean production being important reference points. The research particularly addressed questions of work organization on the shop floor, new product development and innovation. Last but not least, worker participation and corporate governance in German companies was an important research subject against the backdrop of the increasingly pressing of financialisation and the shareholder value debate.

Given the growing role of emerging markets, outsourcing, offshoring, and the restructuring of industrial supply chains in these countries also became important research topics. These issues are studied with respect to the development of working conditions and work relations, with a particular focus on Eastern Europe and the BRIC countries. There is also a particular interest in the repercussions of globalization for the European social model, that is, for work relations, forms of corporate governance and employee voice, and also for the regulation of work in Europe.

The current discussion about advanced manufacturing technologies (in Germany under the heading “Industry 4.0”) has prompted the question of the relation of technology, skills, and work organization. It is this very question that the new project lines currently under development address.

Work and its Future

Key Note Speech, Monday 4 April 2016, 17.45 (Friedrich-Ebert-Foundation, Hiroshimastr. 28)

Joanna Biggs studied at St Peter’s College, Oxford and Queen Mary, University of London. She is an assistant editor at the London Review of Books. Her latest book „All Day Long: A Portrait of Britain at Work“ came out from Serpent’s Tail in April 2015. In this book of case studies of work - from sex workers to special advisers - Joanna looks beyond jobs-boom spin to study the UK’s working life by describing how people fill their working days and how they feel about work.

Cut the Old Pigtails: Towards a New Distribution of Paid and Unpaid Time Over the Life Course

Key Note Speech, Wednesday 6 April 2016, 12.30 (WZB, A 300)

Jutta Allmendinger is President of the Berlin Social Science Center (WZB) and professor of sociology at the Humboldt University Berlin. Her research has centred on the impact of institutions on the life course, with a specific focus on education, the labour market, the (changing) welfare state. Jutta Allmendinger’s other research interests focus on gender inequality in the labour market, the interdependence of both male and female biographies, and the organisation of work.

Global Value Chains, Trade Unions and the Labour Process

Conference opening discussion, 4 April 2016, 11.00 (Friedrich–Ebert Foundation, Hiroshimastr. 28)

Jenny Holdcroft is Policy Director at IndustriALL Global Union, leading IndustriALL’s work to achieve living wages for workers in global supply chains and implementing an agreement with major fashion brands to deliver living wages through industry collective agreements. She is also in charge of IndustriALL’s global campaigns against precarious work and to promote sustainable industrial policy. Jenny is a member of the steering committee of the Accord on Fire and Building Safety in Bangladesh, a legally binding agreement signed between IndustriALL and more than 200 global brands and retailers.

Michael Fichter taught political science and labor relations at the Free University Berlin until his retirement in 2011. Since 2005 he has been a lecturer and adviser in the German Program of the Global Labour University. His research has covered a broad range of topics, more recently with a focus on the challenges facing trade unions in global capitalism.

Kirsty Newsome is Reader in Employment Relations at the Sheffield University Management School. Her research interests are focused around three interconnected core themes: the changing character of employment regulation; the shifts and transformations in the politics of production; and the dynamic interplay of global value chains and the labour process.

Torben Seebold is Head of Dockers’ Section for ver.di united services union and Vice Chairman of the Dockers’ Section within the International and the European Transport Workers Federation (ITF/ETF). He is in charge of collective bargaining with the German Association of Ports and of the representation of the dockers’ interests within the ITF/ETF.
Themes and Streams

This year’s general conference includes papers that cover the following themes:

• The new digital workplace
• Migration and work
• Precarious work – old and new realities
• Reconfiguring work – new forms of organization, working time arrangements and flexibilities
• Trade unionism, industrial relations and collective bargaining
• Global value chains and the labour process
• Management and managerial ideologies
• Voice and participation
• Work and health
• Theoretical perspectives on work and the labour process
• Regulation, institutions, and the labour process
• Shaping work identities and work attitudes
• Labour market, employment policies, and skills

In addition, submissions for five special streams were accepted:

• Intersections of Labour and Nationhood in Transnational Service Work (Organisers: Kiran Mirchandani/University of Toronto, Winifred Poster/Washington University St. Louis)
• Labour, Work and Climate Change (Organisers: Carla Lipsig-Mummé/York University Canada, Linda Clarke/University of Westminster)
• Labour Process Experience in State Employment under Austerity (Organisers: Kim Mather/Keely University, Roger Seifert/University of Wolverhampton)
• Squeezing the Middle? Inequalities at Work (Organisers: Alicja Bobek/TASC Ireland, Tom Turner/University of Limerick, James Wickham/TASC Ireland)
• Employers’ Organisations (Organiser: Marco Hauptmeier/Cardiff University)

Special Event
Meet the Editors of Work, Employment & Society

The WES editors will speak on topics, new developments and getting published in the journal.
Organisers: Paul Brook, Shireen Kanji, Melanie Simms (University of Leicester)
Tuesday, 5 April 2016, 17.00 - 18.30, WZB, B004/05
Symposia

Labor Power in the Third Wave of Globalization  (WZB A300)

Tobias Schulze-Cleven (Rutgers University, Organiser), Michael Fichter (Global Labour University), Rebecca Givan (Rutgers University), Mingwei Liu (Rutgers University)

This symposium probes labor’s evolving forms of collective action across the world in the context of the contemporary third wave of globalization, which has thrown the interconnected fate of workers across the world into stark relief. Transnational markets have deepened, powered by such structural shifts as the IT-enabled modularization of global value chains, the expansion of the financial sector, the private sector’s turn to writing and self-enforcement of market rules, and growth in international migration. Focusing on experiments in China and Germany in particular, we want to discuss workers’ worldwide attempts to develop new sources of solidarity, align group interests and leverage existing institutions to improve labor standards.

New Technologies of Surveillance at Work  (WZB A310)

Phoebe Moore (Middlesex University London, Organiser), Pav Aktar (UNI Global Union), Alessandro Gandini (Middlesex University), Sian Moore (Greenwich University), Ivana Pais (Catholic University of Milan), Martin Upchurch (Middlesex University London), Xanthe Whittaker (University of Leicester)

A regime of total mobilisation and surveillance corrodes workers’ health and safety, creating anxiety, burnout and overwork. Neoliberalism however requires portrayal of such problems as failures to adapt, personal psychological shortcomings, or educational deficits. We claim, rather, that surveillance in workplaces is a systematic effect of a particular labour process. Labour movements will need to combat such corrosion or risk the generalisation of the types of psychological collapse seen at the range of suicides recently seen at Foxconn. This symposium looks at a series of cases of surveillance in workplaces as new technologies provide the means to increase, posing the question: what we can do about it?

The German Labour Market „Miracle“: Success of Skillful Institutional Recalibration or Symptom of Creeping Erosion of the Social System of Production?  (WZB B002/3)

Recent developments in the German labour market have been attracting the attention of labour market researchers and labour process scholars over the past years: After a long phase of stagnation in the 1990s, we are facing today the astonishingly successful surmounting of the financial– and the following economic crisis in the final years of the millennium’s first decade generated research on the ‘Job Miracle’. To this background debates on risks of old and new labour market dualization as well as the quest of a living wage for a rising share of individuals and households indicate new and ongoing challenges for the German coordinated capitalism and a society characterized by changing family and gender relations and rising ethnic diversity. The symposium will address these ongoing changes.
To Make Sure You Don’t Go to Bed Hungry...

Lunch
Lunch will take place at the Maritim Hotel at 12.30 p.m. on Monday and at 12.15 p.m. on Tuesday. The lunch area is located on the first floor of the hotel.

On Wednesday, lunch will be served at 13.30 p.m. for all participants at the WZB.

Coffee
Between the paper sessions, coffee will be served at the WZB, in front of the conference rooms at the Maritim Hotel, and in the conference room at the Friedrich-Ebert-Foundation

PhD Dinner
All participants in the PhD workshop are invited to the PhD dinner on Sunday evening. The dinner starts at 7 p.m. at the Red Berlin Culinary, Genthiner Str. 20.

Conference Dinner
The conference dinner will take place on Tuesday, April 5 at 7.30 p.m. in the “12 Apostel” restaurant. Please show your conference badges or partner tickets at the entry. The restaurant is located under the elevated train line at 2 Georgenstrasse.

To get to the 12 Apostel restaurant from the WZB, take the S-Bahn train from Potsdamer Platz. Please take the S1 line in the direction of Oranienburg or the S2 in the direction of Bernau and exit at Friedrichstrasse station. From Friedrichstrasse station, the 12 Apostel restaurant is just a five minute walk.

Child Care During the Conference
Child care is provided for free by the WZB during the conference. Please contact the conference organisers for details.
ILPC PhD Workshop Programme

The ILPC PhD Workshop brings doctoral students and leading academics together for informed debate on contemporary labour process theory and issues. It also provides a fantastic opportunity for new researchers to meet established academics to discuss ‘doing’ a labour process (LP) inspired PhD from a number of different angles, which is the theme of this year’s PhD workshop.

The event kicks off with a dinner at 19.00 on the Sunday evening (3rd April) in the Red Berlin Culinary, which is in the Genthiner Str. 20 http://www.red-bar-restaurant.de/index.php?de (it is a 5 minute walk from the WZB where the main conference and PhD workshop are being held).

On Monday 4th April, the workshop continues at 9.00am with expert discussion on theoretical and topical lenses through which we might ‘do’ a LP inspired PhD. Confirmed speakers include Prof. Paul Thompson (covering core theory), Prof. Melanie Simms (employment relations), Prof. Abigail Marks (social psychology), Prof. Rob MacKenzie (migrant labour) and Prof. Paul Stewart (internationalisation and globalisation). Each speaker will give a quick overview and then there will be an opportunity to break out into smaller groups to discuss issues we may face doing a PhD on these areas with the academics. The workshop organiser (Dr. Scott Hurrell) will also be available to discuss careers post-PhD, for those nearing the end of their studies.

Welcoming and informal, the PhD Workshop Programme is designed to enhance the overall conference experience and concludes in time for the opening of the main ILPC event on Monday.

Book Launch: China at Work

At the drinks reception on Monday, April 4 in the foyer of the Friedrich-Ebert-Stiftung in Hiroshimastrasse 28, the launch will take place of the book that arose from the last conference in 2015, “China at Work: A Labour Process Perspective on the Transformation of Work and Employment in China”, edited by Mingwei Liu and Chris Smith. All conference participants will receive a free copy of the book, which will be distributed during the drinks reception.

Bringing together leading authorities and emerging young researchers, this book is aimed at students and scholars interested in the Chinese workplace and the impact that China is having on work internationally. It is the first textbook to use labour process analysis to examine work and employment in China.
VW Wolfsburg Plant Tour

We are organizing a visit to the Volkswagen car plant in Wolfsburg for participants who registered for the tour. The visit will take place on Thursday 7th April, 2016.

The preliminary schedule for the trip is as follows:

8:00 Meeting at the Info Point of the Berlin Hauptbahnhof, Ground Floor, exit to the Europaplatz
8:31 ICE Train to Wolfsburg
10:30 Plant Tour
12:00 Lunch
14:00 Discussion with a Representative from the VW Works Council
16:17 ICE Train to Berlin
17:28 Arrival at Berlin Hauptbahnhof

Sightseeing

There are tons of guided tours you can book. Here is but a small sample...

If you need a short break from the conference programme, we recommend the Paintings Galery (Gemäldegalerie) which is located in the Sigismundstr. directly next to the WZB (http://www.kulturforum-berlin.de/engl_gemaeldegalerie.html). It offers one of the most important collections of European paintings. You can also visit the Museum of Graphic Arts or the Museum for Music Instruments – both also in the direct neighbourhood. Further important places of interest located at a walking distance from the WZB (at the Potsdamer Platz or its neighbourhood) are the Martin-Gropius-Bau, famous for its exhibitions, the Holocaust Memorial and the Brandenburg Gate.
